Strategic Objectives for Yeats Library 2014 – 15

Introduction

In its Strategic Plan 2013-15, IT Sligo has set out a vision for 2020 to be a Technological University driving the social and economic development of the Connacht-Ulster Region, and to be a leader in online learning. The Mission of IT Sligo is to prepare graduates for complex roles in a rapidly changing technological world, advancing and disseminating knowledge through research and scholarship to meet the needs of the Connacht-Ulster Region and beyond. This mission is underpinned by the student-centred values of Excellence, Inclusiveness, Service, Innovation, Experience. By 2020, the Institute will be characterised by:

- Graduates distinguished by how they apply knowledge in the workplace – locally, nationally, internationally – and by a commitment to lifelong learning
- Engagement & Participation that is open to and meets the needs of local industry and community
- Research recognised internationally in niche areas where IT Sligo has chosen to excel
- Internationalisation of our campus through greater mobility of students and staff, and enhanced portability of our qualifications
- Staff characterised by their support for the student, commitment to the mission of the Institute, a dedication to grow, learn and develop and to provide a high quality service
- Collaboration with other HEIs, professional bodies, industry partners, particularly where demonstrably more can be achieved through collective action and knowledge sharing.

In delivering to this Institute's vision and mission, the Yeats Library has prepared a set of objectives. Each of these objectives is linked to the strategic pillars identified in the IT Sligo Strategic Plan 2013-15.

Aim of the Yeats Library

The Yeats Library at IT Sligo intends to be recognised as one of the primary physical and virtual learning spaces on campus. In achieving this vision, an effective library service needs to be provided to on-campus students and also to distance learners and other staff and students who can't travel to campus.

Following from the Institute's mission, to contribute to delivering the Vision for 2020, the overall aim of the Yeats Library is to provide support services for teaching, learning, and research so that that graduates are capable of applying knowledge in the workplace and are equipped with the skills to undertake lifelong learning. Library services will be extended to students and staff and to external members to support the Institute's objectives in relation to teaching, research, collaboration, external engagement and online and international education.

In achieving this aim, the Yeats Library will:

- Provide well managed resources in pursuance of a resource development policy based on the Institute's academic and research needs
- Provide a high standard of learning information service, in person or indirectly through administrative, systems, bibliographic, document supply or other background work
- Ensure access to resources by all library users as appropriate
- Ensure compliance with copyright legislation and licensing agreements
- Appreciate the serendipitous aspect of information and knowledge seeking and accept and value certain items in its collections irrespective of resource development policies.
